Interviewing Gauri Chadha

Posted on January 9, 2013 by Ujala Ali Khan

I suffered from a serious bout of accessory envy today. Here is why:

The person wearing this awesome bling is NOT me! It is the gorgeous Maha from XO PR.

I was at The Pavilion this afternoon to interview emerging filmmaker Gauri Chadha for The National.

Gauri might be an unfamiliar name because she has played lowkey till now, but she has worked on some major projects such as Mission Impossible: Ghost Protocol and Bollywood film Love Breakups Zindagi. She's in Dubai at the moment and the gurlies from XO PR hooked me up with an interview. Here is my photographer taking some pictures of Gauri:

It was so nice to talk to such an accomplished young desi girl. She's just 27 and has a Hollywood AND a Bollywood feather in her cap. Not just that: she has made a documentary film titled Gawah (Witness) which is doing the rounds of the film festival circuit. You can watch the trailer online here.

Here's shot of us three girls after wrapping up the interview (which you can read in The National next week). I find it quite cute that all three of us are dressed in animal prints *____*

Dinner: sushi. Too scared to use raw fish since it's my first time making it at home. Smoked salmon,...
